FARMERS HELD TO BE FACING BANKRUPTCY

Inevitable Unless Price Situation Is Relieved, Report Indicates.

RESERVE SYSTEM BLAMED

Mass. Valley to Assist in Maintaining Level of Prices for Basic Industry That Will Meet Cost of Production, Committee Reports to Conference.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—General bankruptcy and ruin are inevitable, unless some immediate remedy is found to relieve the present price situation, according to the Agricultural Conference here today. A general committee appointed to study the situation.

The committee blames the federal reserve system for present prices charged for commodities and it is particularly wrong to begin with the raw commodities, for such a program inevitably forces upon the producer the heavier burden of reconstruction and readjustment.

Declaring that the conditions of the minds of the farmer population is one of the most serious of the state of mind can only be changed by a frank and fair attitude on the part of those in authority, the text of which can be found in the report.

PEOPLES B. & L. ASSISTS BUYING 36 HOMES IN YEAR

At a meeting of the People's Building & Loan Association held last night, the 10th annual statement was read and officers for the next year elected. The statement showed the association had received $1,152,500.45. During the year a total of $25,000 has been loaned to assist in the purchasing of 36 homes. The amount of $10,000 was paid out when stocks "M" and "N" matured. In the year $95,851.29 was handled by the association.

Officers re-elected were Henry Goldsmith, president; Joseph A. Mason, vice president; Alex B. Hood, secretary; J. C. Whitely, treasurer; S. R. Goldsmith, solicitor. The directors are S. R. POWER END OF WEST PENN BILLING DEPARTMENT MOVES TO PITTSBURG ON OCTOBER 15

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES CONTINUE ENFORCEMENT OF COMPULSORY LAW

Three Arrests Follow Failure to Have Children at Classes Another Today.

Three more arrests have been made in connection with the enforcement of the compulsory school law. Stirred by the state authorities to action, the local school heads are keeping close tabs on the attendance in every room and when the three-day time allowance has expired, a notice is served and then prosecution follows.

Yesterday William Hanford of Woodlawn avenue was given a hearing before Alderman S. K. Howard. He was arrested when his son, George, absent himself from the South Side school. He paid the costs and a $5 fine.

Mrs. Milton McClintock was also fined the costs and $2 because her son Ernest is out of school. Last summer the boy secured an employment certificate to work at the glass factory in South Connellsville. Later, he went to the Baltimore & Ohio railroad but did not get a certificate for this position. He will either enter school or take out another certificate to cover his employment by the railroad company.

Mrs. Mary Omdt, whose daughter has been absent from the high school, was assessed the costs and $2. The girl had been employed in a Water street restaurant for a time and the mother would not send her to school, it was charged.

The parent of a fourth student who has been absent from school will be arrested today and the hearing held tonight. The arrests will continue, the authorities say, as long as the violations of the compulsory law continue.

WORLD SERIES BALL FIGURES AFFECTED BY PLAYER SCANDAL

Attendance and Receipts for 1920 Well Up to Those of Former Years.
By Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—Figures for this year's world series given out today by John E. Bruce, secretary of the National Commission, show that neither the attendance nor the gate receipts were as great as at last year's contest. They place the 1920 series well up toward the top in the record for old years, however. The approximate figure for 1920 follows: Total attendance, 178,737 for seven games. Total receipts, $564,800. Players share, first five games, $23,025. Winning team's share, $9,697. Losing team's share, $9,465. Each winning player's share, $1,204. Each losing player's share, $2,337.

KAUFFMAN TRANSFERRED

Lighting Accounts Will Continue to Be Handled Here.

The power accounts end of the billing department of the West Penn system is to be moved to Pittsburgh October 15, according to an announcement of the company today. The lighting accounts will continue to be handled in Connellsville.

There are about 45,000 accounts, of which 5,000 are power, the remainder lighting, it is said.

The transfer will affect less than a half dozen persons, according to a statement at West Penn offices. W. G. Kauffman, head of the billing department, will be transferred to Pittsburgh, in charge of power accounts. Four or five clerks will accompany him.

Effective the same date A. T. Hestup of Scotland, now in the billing department, will be made assistant to Mr. Kauffman, in charge of the Connellsville office, but under Mr. Kauffman, who will have the supervision of the handling of all accounts on the West Penn system. At the present time some territory accounts are handled by local superintendents and their forces.

While having his headquarters in Pittsburgh Mr. Kauffman will for the present retain his residence in Water street, Connellsville.

SETTLE IRISH PROBLEM

Revised Home Rule Bill Will Accomplish End, Secretary Says.
By Associated Press.
BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 13.—Mr. James Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, in a speech here today, announced that he, Viscount French, lord lieutenant for Ireland, and Sir Neville Macready, commander of the military forces in Ireland, were in complete accord and did not contemplate resigning.

He declared that the government intended to continue with the home rule bill which it had prepared, and would enlarge in the most generous manner, especially in the direction of franchise, thereby making a complete and final settlement of the Irish problem.

CLEVELAND MAKES READY TO OBSERVE DODGERS' DEFEAT

Reception for Tris Speaker and His Band Tonight First of Several Scheduled Events.
By Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—With the fifth city of the United States in the matter of population definitely assured of being the first city of the baseball universe for at least 12 months, Cleveland today settled back to enjoyment of the world championship baseball game brought here by Jim Duggan, Indians who yesterday defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers and captured the annual classic of the professional diamond from the National League champions by five games to two.

Cleveland, for 12 years a hanger-on in professional baseball, turned its thoughts today to devising new ways of showing appreciation of the prowess of the athletes who finally made this city the world baseball capital.

Cleveland believes it has done little for the American leaguers and is getting ready to let the world know just how it feels about possessing a championship ball club.

The first of the series of celebrations will be held tonight and according to plans the witness of the two city throughout the past four days over its club will be home and dignified compared with the joy to be displayed. Mayor Fitzgerald has issued a proclamation calling on all good citizens within walking or riding distance of the metropolis to be present tonight at Wade park and pay homage to Tris Speaker and his team.

An official dinner for the players is another affair which probably will take place in a day or two. Then there is the matter of presents for all the players and possibly a parade, but Cleveland assures the world all such things will be adequately attended to and Cleveland will prove that it never goes half way in winning games or celebrating its victory.

INDIANA MEN DRAW $35,000 SALARIES AS MINE MANAGERS

By Associated Press.
CANNELTON, Ind., Oct. 13.—"Many operating accounts of coal companies are padded for the purpose of avoiding the federal income tax," said Governor Goodrich of Indiana, in an address to a good roads meeting here today in discussing orders of the special coal and food commission which recently fixed coal prices in Indiana. He said that if the mine operators continued their refusal to furnish coal upon the order of the commission "all facts in possession of the commission will be given to the public."

The governor said that men in Indiana, who before the war were content with salaries of $5,000 to $10,000, were now drawing $35,000 and more for managing mines.

VEECH ESTATE WINS

Court Refuses Connellsville New Trial in Damage Case.
A new trial was refused by Judge Van Swearingen Tuesday in the case of Louise Veech, deceased, A. V. Howell and James A. Veech against the City of Connellsville, which was tried some time ago before a jury. The plaintiffs were awarded a verdict of $1,800 damages in their property on Ashman avenue by a change in the grade of the street by the city.

The city sought a new trial on the ground that the verdict of the jury was excessive in amount, and that some of the testimony given by the witnesses was improper.

Announcing Sharp Price Reductions in Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets and Whittall Rugs

We have just been notified by the factories of substantial reductions in the wholesale price of Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets and Whittall Rugs. True to our consistent policy of giving you always highest quality merchandise at lowest possible prices, we immediately applied the new lower prices to our present stock. We take the loss.

Retail Prices of These Articles are Fixed at the Factory—Reductions, Therefore, are Bonafide New Prices Save

$5 to $7.50 On Your

Every Hoosier model is included in this reduction. It is a clean price cut—all along the line. It is the Hoosier way of ending price uncertainty.

"There is absolutely no basis for Hoosier price reductions now except that it had to come sometime," says the Hoosier Manufacturing company in announcing its lower prices.

That means that you can now get the Hoosier—the choice of two million American women—at a price from $5 to $7.50 below the former fair price.

It means that Aaron's is helping you reduce your living costs.

LAST TO GO UP—

—FIRST TO COME DOWN

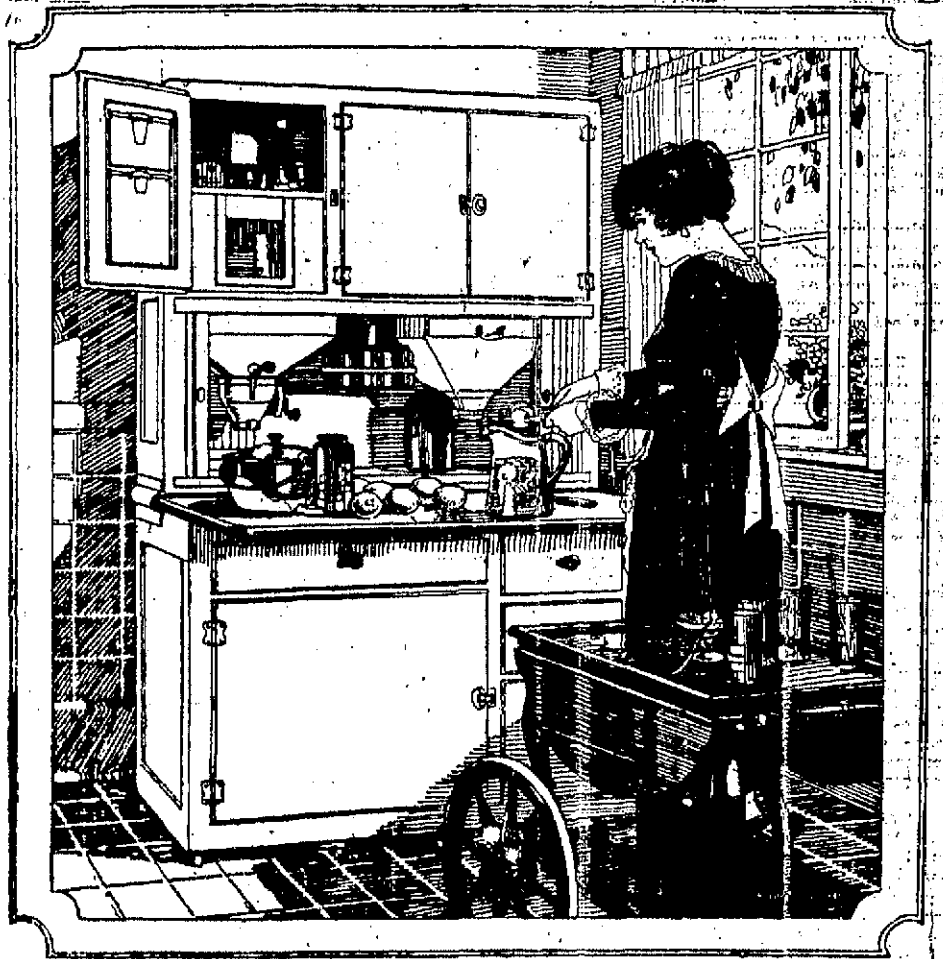

The Hoosier has always been sold on a close margin. Throughout the war Hoosier prices were among the last to go up and then advances were only sufficient to cover actual increases in cost.

Now the Hoosier is the first to come down and it is going all the way. You can no longer blame high prices because you do not have a Hoosier. You get your Hoosier and we pocket the loss.

So don't put it off any longer. Come in tomorrow and get your Hoosier at the new low price.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Greasy Gas, Sourness and Pain
How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and to a consequent failure to digest food properly. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sourness, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well. Artificial digestion is not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Frey's Laxative and the acids are neutralized by the use of a few drops of Bismuth, Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of Bismuth after each meal. The water after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bismuth Magnesia (in powder or tablet form) never harms the milk in babies, is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

The Housewife's Burden

When a woman is almost distracted from overwork, her home is in disorder, crying children, and on top of all is suffering from backache, bearing down pains, or some other form of feminine ills, then she should remember that hundreds of women in just her condition have been restored to health and regained their youthful strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and not rest until she has given it a fair trial.

Proof that it Restored the Health of These Two Women

Cairo, Ill.—"Some time ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine."—Mrs. J. R. Matthews, 3811 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby came when I could no longer keep up. It strengthened my back and relieved me of the ill effects which so often develop at such times. That was my first experience with the Vegetable Compound. Years afterwards I took it during the Change of Life and got along so well I scarcely ever had to lie down during the day and seldom had dizzy, fainting spells. I am now well and strong, can do all my house work with perfect ease and it is a comfort to me to be able to say to other suffering women 'Take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and be strong. I will be glad to have you use my name if it will be the means of helping any one.'"—Mrs. R. A. Farnham, 600 Orchard Knob Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Cleveland Six Now Only $1435

The Cleveland again establishes a new standard of quality and value in the light car field. It offers so much more at such a fair price that other light cars—sixes and fours—can scarcely be thought of as competitive. Cleveland character is distinctive, its daily service is unsurpassed.

No Other Light Car Offers Such Worth

The exclusive Cleveland motor, the most highly developed of the powerful over-head type, gives an abundance of speed, a rare flexibility of power, and a dependability and endurance that surpasses other light cars.

The sturdiness of its chassis construction, the ease of its control, the soft cushion-like action of its under-slung spring construction—all these qualities add immeasurably to the certainty and comfort of the Cleveland's performance on any road, on the steepest hills, and in crowded traffic.

A Selection of Body Styles That Meet Every Wish

Bodies of dignity and beauty are mounted on the Cleveland chassis, and no other car offers cleaner lines, more truly sturdy gracefulness or deeper lustre of finish than does the Cleveland Six.

"Yes, I am married."
"Who married you?"
"Father Brennan, at the Roman Catholic chapel at Berwick."
"And you a Presbyterian?"
"He wished it to be in a Catholic church."
"When was it?"
"On Wednesday week."
I remembered, then, that on that day she had driven over to Berwick, while De Lapp had been away on a long walk, as he said, among the hills.
"What about Jim?" I asked.
"Oh! Jim will forgive me."
"You will break his heart and ruin his life."
"No, no; he will forgive me."
"He will murder De Lapp. Oh, Edie! how could you bring such disgrace and misery upon us?"
"Ah, now you are scolding!" she cried, and I saw the window.
I waited some little time and then, for I had much still to ask her, but she would return no answer, and I thought that I could hear her sobbing. At last I gave it up, and was about to go into the house, for it was nearly dark now, when I heard the click of the garden gate. It was De Lapp himself.
But as he came up the path he seemed to be either mad or drunk. He dashed as he walked, cracked his fingers in the air, and his eyes blazed like the will-o'-the-wisp. "Voleurs!" he shouted—"Voleurs de la garde!"—just as he had done when he was off his head, and then suddenly "En avant! en avant!" and up he came, waving his walking-stick over his head. He stopped short when he saw me looking at him, and I dare say he felt a bit ashamed of himself.
"Halloo, Jack!" he cried, "I didn't think anybody was there. I am in when you call the high spirits tonight."
"So it seems!" said I, in my bluntest fashion. "You may not feel so merry when my friend Jim Horncroft comes back tomorrow."
"Ta, ta, ta!" cried De Lapp. "I see that you know of our marriage. Edie has told you. Jim may do what he likes."
"You have given us a nice return for having taken you in."
"My good fellow," said he, "I have, as you say, given you a very nice return. I have taken Edie from a life which is unworthy of her, and I have connected you by marriage with a noble family. However, I have some letters which I must write tonight, and the rest we can talk over tomorrow when your friend Jim is here to help us." He stepped toward the door.
"And this—this whom you were awaiting at the post-office?" I cried, seeing light suddenly.
"Why, Jack, you are becoming quite sharp," said he, in a mocking tone, and an instant later I heard the door of his room close and the key turn in the lock. I thought that I should see him no more that night, but a few minutes later he came into the kitchen where I was sitting with the old folk.
"Madame!" said he, bowing down with his hand to his heart in his own queer fashion. "I have just with much kindness in your hands, and it shall always be in my heart. You will accept this small souvenir, and you, also, sir, you will take this little gift which I have the honor to make to you." He put two paper packets down upon the table at his elbow, and then, with three more bows to my mother, he walked from the room.
His present was a brooch with a green stone set in the middle and a dozen little shining white ones all round it. We had never seen such things before and did not know how to set a name on them, but they told us afterward at Berwick that the brooch was an emerald and that they were worth more than all the lambs we had that spring. My dear old mother has been wearing this many a year but that bonny brooch sparkles at the neck of my eldest daughter when she goes out into company, and I never look at it that I do not see the keen eyes and the long, thin nose, and the thin lips of our father, as he sat with it in the palm of his hand, his ear stooping to hear to the tick. I do not know which was best pleased, and they would talk of nothing but what De Lapp had given them.
"He's given you something more," said I, at last.
"What then, Jack?"
"A husband for Cousin Edie," said I.
They thought I was joking, when I said that, but when they came to understand that it was the real truth, they were as pleased as if I had told them that she had married the laird. De Lapp was for all we knew, steady and quiet and well-to-do; and as to the secrecy of it, secret marriages were very common in Scotland at that time, when only a few words were needed to make a man and wife, so nobody thought much of that. The old folk were as pleased, then, as if their rent had been lowered, but I was still sore at heart, for it seemed to me that my friend had been cruelly dealt with, and I knew well that he was not a man who would easily put up with it.

CHAPTER X.

The Return of the Shadow.
I woke with a heavy heart the next morning, for I knew that Jim would be home before long, and that it would be a day of trouble. But how much trouble that day was to bring, or how far it would alter the lives of all of us, was more than I had ever thought in my darkest moments.

I had to get up early that morning, for it was just the first flush of the lambing, and my father and I were out on the moors as soon as it was fairly light. As I came out into the pasture a wind struck upon my face, and there was the house-door wide open and the gray light drawing another door upon the inner wall. And when I looked again, there was Edie's room open also, and De Lapp's too, and I saw in a flash what that giving of presents meant upon the evening before. It was a leave-taking, and they were gone.

My heart was bitter against Cousin Edie as I stood looking into her room. To think that for the sake of a new-comer she could leave us all without one kindly word or as much as a handshake. And he, too! I was angry and hurt and sore, and I went out into the open without a word to my father, and climbed up on to the moors to cool my flushed face.

When I got up to Corrieguir I caught my last glimpse of Cousin Edie. The little cutter still lay where she had anchored, but a row-boat was pulling out to her from the shore. In the stern I saw a flutter of red, and I knew that it came from her skirt. I watched the boat reach the yacht, and the folk climb on to her deck. Then the anchor came up, the white wings spread once more, and away she dipped right out to sea. I still saw that little red spot on the deck, and De Lapp standing beside her. They could see me also, for I was outlined against the sky, and they both waved their hands for a long time, but gave it up at last when they found that I would give them no answer.

I stood with my arms folded, feeling as gloom as ever I did in my life, until their cutter was only a square, flickering patch of white among the mists of the morning. It was breakfast-time, and the porridge upon the table, before I got back, but I had no heart for the food.

"There's a letter here from him," said my father, pointing to a note folded up on the table. "It was in his room. Maybe you would read it to us."

It was addressed, in big letters, to "The Good People of West Inch," and this was the note which lies before me, all stained and faded, as I write:

My Friends: I don't think to have left you as suddenly, but the matter was in other hands than mine. Duty and honor have called me back to my old comrades. This you will doubtless understand before many days are passed. I take your Edie with me as my wife, and it may be that in some more peaceful time you will see us again at West Inch. Meanwhile accept the assurance of my affection, and believe me that I shall never forget the quiet months which I spent with you at the time when my life would have been worth a week at the utmost had I been taken, by the Alibi. But the reason of this you may also learn some day.

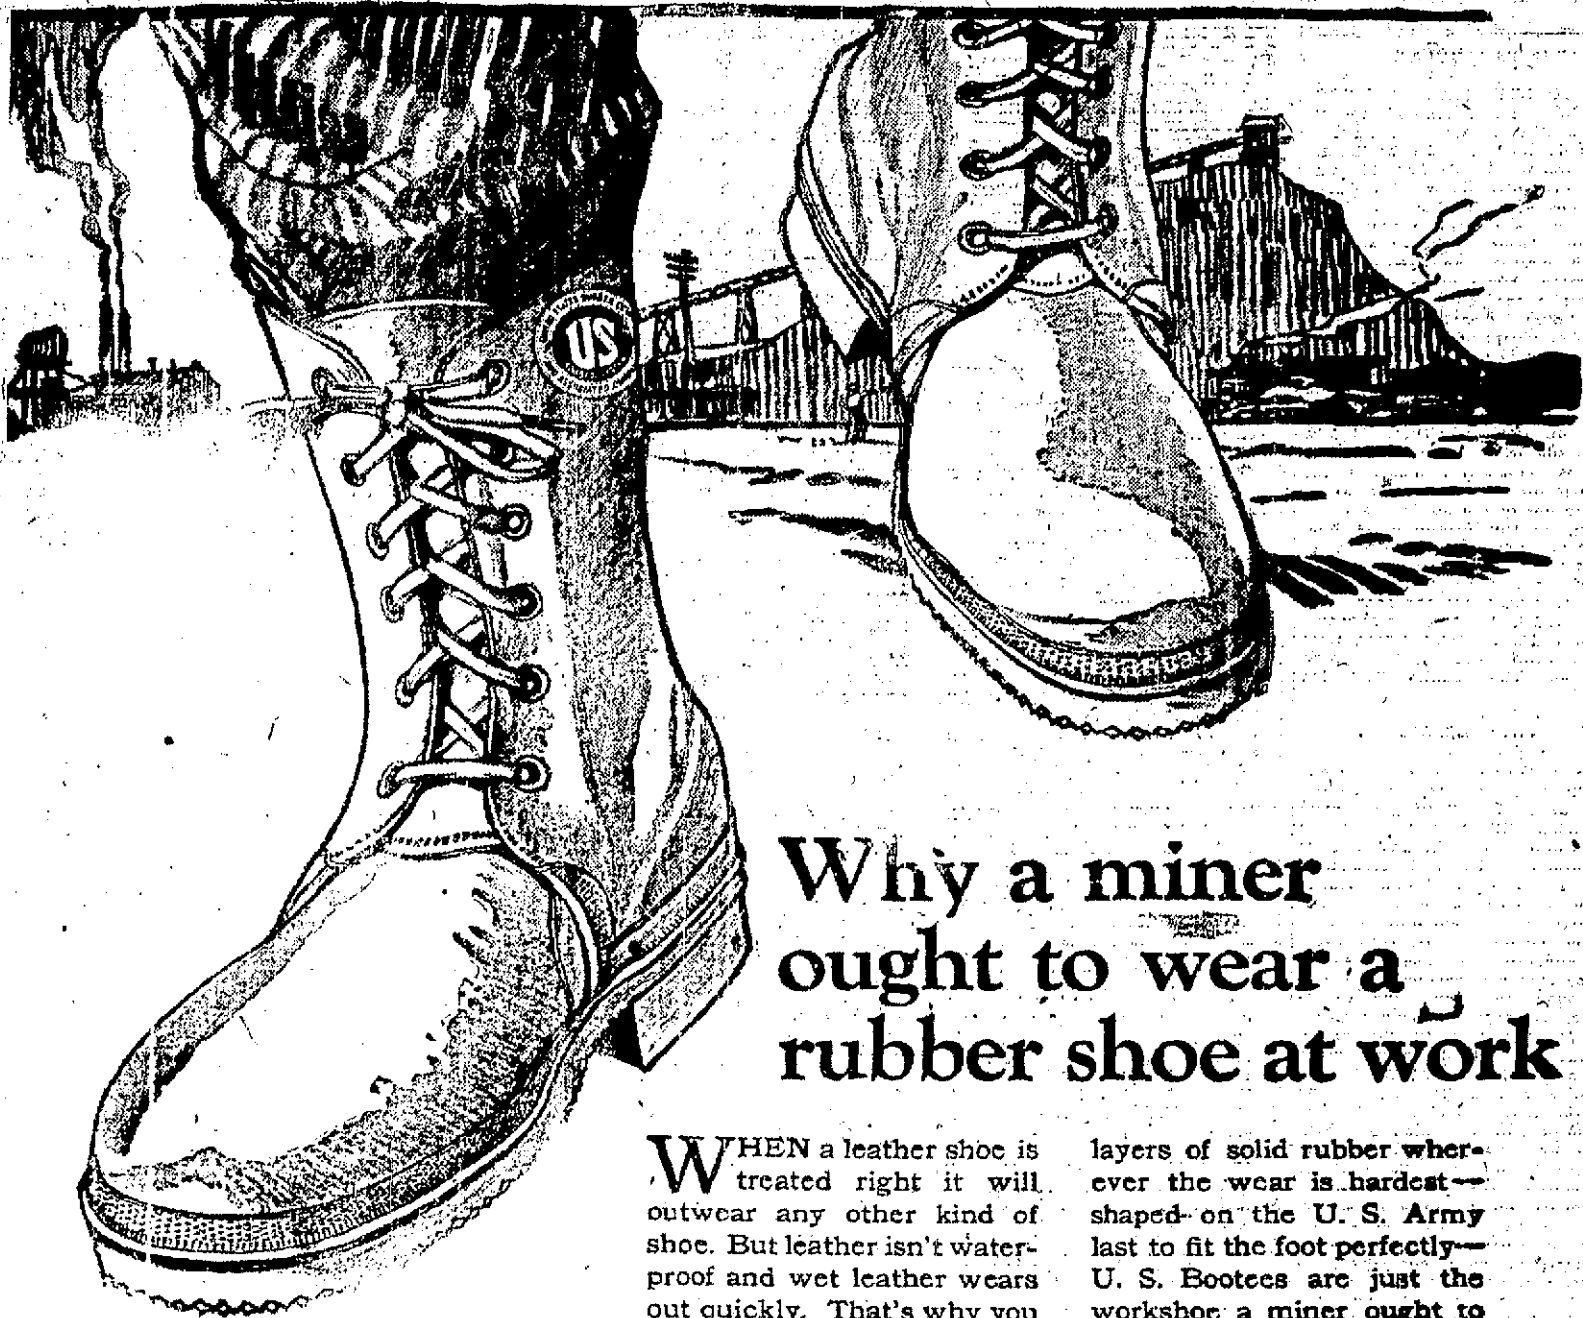

Yours,
COLONEL DES VOLTAIRES DE LA GARDE, ex aide-de-camp de N. M. l'Empereur Napoleon.

I whistled when I came to these words, written under his name; for though I had long made up my mind that our lodger could be none other than one of those wonderful soldiers of whom we had heard so much, who had forced their way into every capital of Europe, save only our own, still I had little thought that our roof covered Napoleon's own aide-de-camp and a colonel of his Guard.

"So," said I, "De Lissac is his name, and not De Lapp. Well, colonel or no, it is as well for him that he got away from here before Jim laid hands upon him. And time enough, too," I added, peeping out at the kitchen window, "for there is the man himself coming through the garden."

I ran to the door to meet him, feeling that I would have given a deal to have him back in Edinburgh again. He came running, waving a paper over his head, and I thought that maybe he had had a note from Edie, and that it was all known to him. But as he came up, I saw that it was a big, stiff, yellow paper, which crackled as he waved it, and that his eyes were dancing with happiness.

"Hurray! Jack!" he shouted. "Where is Edie? Where is Edie?"
"What is it, man?" I asked.
"It's my diploma, Jack. I can prac-

Why a miner ought to wear a rubber shoe at work

WHEN a leather shoe is treated right it will outwear any other kind of shoe. But leather isn't waterproof and wet leather wears out quickly. That's why you are saving money when you wear rubber shoes in the mine.

The all-rubber watertight U. S. Bootee will give you a new idea of what a miner's workshoe ought to be. It's a big, tough, rugged shoe that will stand the roughest sort of wear and keep your feet always dry and comfortable.

Made with a double-thick sole—backed up by extra layers of solid rubber wherever the wear is hardest—shaped on the U. S. Army last to fit the foot perfectly—U. S. Bootees are just the workshoe a miner ought to wear. The special feltex innersole and the friction lining mean extra comfort all day long.

U. S. Bootees come in two styles—high and low. Ask your dealer to show you a pair.

Be sure to look for the U. S. Seal—it means solid wear and long service for your money

For farmers, too

Built especially to stand up under hard use in mines—the hard-possible kind of wear—the "U. S." Bootee is now being adopted by farmers everywhere who know the value of sturdy, comfortable rubber footwear.

ties when I like. It's all right. I want to show it to Edie."
"The best you can do is to forget all about Edie," said I.
Never have I seen a man's face change as his did when I said these words.

"What? What did I mean, Jack? Collier?" he stammered. He let go his hold of the precious diploma as he spoke, and away it went over the hedge and across the moor, where it stuck flapping on a white-bush, but he never so much as glanced at it.

His eyes were bent upon me, and I saw the devil's spark glimmer up in the depths of them.
"She is not worthy of you," said I. He gripped me by the shoulder.

"What have you done?" he whispered. "This is some of your hanky-panky. Where is she?"
"She's off with that Frenchman who lugged here," I had been casting about in my mind how I could break it gently to him; but I was always backward in speech, and I could think of nothing better than this.

"Oh!" said he; and stood nodding his head and looking at me, though I knew very well that he could neither see me, nor the steading, nor anything else. Then he gave a gulp in his throat, and spoke in a queer, dry, rasping voice.

"When was this?" said he.
"This morning."
"Were they married?"
"Yes."

He put his hand against the door-post to steady himself.
"Any message for me?"
"She said that you would forgive her."

"May God blast my soul on the day I do. Where have they gone to?"

"To France, I should judge."
"His name was De Lapp, I think?"
"His real name is De Lissac, and he is no less than a colonel in Bouey's Guards."

"Ah, he would be in Paris likely! That is well. That is well."

"Hold up!" I shouted. "Father! father! bring the brandy!"
His knees had given way for an instant, but he was himself again before the old man came running with the bottle.
